

Andrew Proctor
andrew.proctor@econ.lmu.de

Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich
Chair of Empirical Economic Research
Ludwigstraße 33
80539 München
Germany

Phone: +49(0)1627052980

Personal Information:

Gender: Male
Data of Birth: Nov. 3, 1987
Citizenship: American, Swedish

Undergraduate Studies:

Furman University, 2006 to 2010
Bachelor of Arts in History (Magna Cum Laude)

London School of Economics, 2008 to 2009
General course in Economic History

Graduate Studies:

Stockholm School of Economics, 2016 to 2022
Ph.D. in Economics
Thesis Title: Essays in human capital and econometrics

Duke University, 2019 to 2022
Visiting PhD student in Economics (sponsor Peter Arcidiacono)

Swedish Institute for Social Research at Stockholm University, Jan. 2019 to Aug. 2019
Visiting PhD student in Economics

Universiteit van Amsterdam, 2015 to 2016
Master of Science in Econometrics
Thesis Title: Intergenerational Effects of Stratified Educational Financing in Tiebout School Choice, 1922-2015 (grade of distinction)

Research Fields:

Labor economics (esp. human capital topics), applied and structural microeconometrics.

Teaching Experience:

Fall 2022	Econometrics I (Advanced Masters / PhD), LMU Munich.
Spring 2019	Data Analysis in R (Masters course), Stockholm School of Economics, Lecturer.
Fall 2018	Empirical Economics, Stockholm School of Economics, Seminar Teacher for Erik Lindqvist.

Spring 2018	Data Analysis in R Short Course, Stockholm School of Economics, Lecturer.
Fall 2017	Empirical Economics, Stockholm School of Economics, Seminar Teacher for Per Hjerstrand.

Research Experience and Related Employment:

Fall 2018	Stockholm School of Economics, research assistant to Prof. Anna Dreber Almenberg and Erik Snowberg.
Summer 2009	London School of Economics, Research assistant to Dr. Eric Golson.
2011-2012	City of Billings (MT) Community Development Division. Supported the Mayor's Committee on Homelessness through the federal AmeriCorps program. Primary duties included data analysis and research, management of public awareness campaigns, and facilitation of related community groups.

Grants and Fellowships:

2023	Institute for Evaluation of Labour Market and Education Policy (IFAU). Research grant of 448,000 Swedish kronor.
2019-2021	Jan Wallander and Tom Hedelius Foundation Grant for doctoral research abroad. 500,000 Swedish kronor.
2020-2021	Institute for Evaluation of Labour Market and Education Policy (IFAU). Research grant of 196,100 Swedish kronor.

Research Publications

Crowdsourcing hypothesis tests: Making transparent how design choices shape research results (with Landy et al). Psychological Bulletin (2020), 146(5), 451-479.
doi:10.1037/bul0000220

Work in Progress

Did the apple fall far from the tree? Dynamics of educational and labor market inequality when households are uncertain about childrens' ability

Careers of the Extremely Intelligent (with Erik Lindqvist and Jonas Vlachos)

Modified Klein-Spady: A semiparametric estimator of binary choice (with Per Hjerstrand and Joakim Westerlund)

Bundling Frictions of Tiebout Choice in the Sub-metropolis

Dynamics of educational decisions and gender-biased ability beliefs (with Shubhaa Bhattacharya and Patrizia Massner)